

“Finding Your True Higher Purpose”

By Caroline Cory

Have you ever wondered what you are doing here on Earth? Why you have chosen this reality, this body, these parents and these experiences? And what is, really, the meaning of all this, the meaning of life? Of course you have! These questions are as ancient as humanity itself and they continue to be at the root of the greatest mysteries that we seem incapable of resolving. As for me, these questions began at a young age, when I opened up to other realities through the perception of subtle energy and telepathic communication, and with time, I began to put this earthly reality into a whole new perspective.

I am five years old having a typical human day when I suddenly notice a brilliant light sphere present right next to me. It seemed to have appeared out of nowhere and was about double my 5-year old size, emanating vibrant light and an overwhelming sense of love. It was total pureness, utter bliss and absolute, comforting joy, which I thought was a nice contrast with everything else around me at the time. “Finally”, I said, “this is home!” This energy was in fact a Being, a Consciousness. We “spoke” for a while and before it vanished, we agreed to remain in permanent contact throughout my human life. “But how?” I asked, “Just by asking”, it replied, “It is as simple as that.”

So throughout my life, I remained connected to this brilliant pure essence one way or another, through telepathy, prayer, meditation or simple intention. At times, the communication was as clear and present as it was during our first encounter, and at other times, it seemed to be a faint memory-like or dream-like experience of some sort. However, even during these less obvious connections, the mere thought or even the possibility of being in contact with this pure and blissful love, is what allowed me to maintain my focus on it and keep summoning it. But what is “it”? And how did all this work? I was now determined to understand the nature and mechanics of this energetic connection and this experience.

With time, my ability to perceive subtle energy grew more precise and more accurate and with this increased empowered confidence, I could finally perceive that the energy that I had encountered at the age of 5 was nothing but an aspect of my own lineage, which began at Source. Many have a different meaning for the word Source. For me, Source is not only an energy form and Consciousness itself but it is also an actual physical location from which all forms of existence spring. In the case of Earth, Source is located at the center of its universe. So, I saw that the aspect of my being that is pure essence and utter joy began at Source, extended to my human aspect here on Earth while remaining at Source. “Hmmm,” you will say, “that could be the longest stretch of consciousness in existence - about 50 billion light years! Can we really be on Earth while also being at Source?” Unquestionably so! Not only is this process real but it also applies to you, me and everyone else on planet Earth.

In this article, I will skip the “how” of this process because it is a massive topic that does not fit into one publication, let alone an article, and focus on the “why.” And this reason, as you will find, is nothing short of magical.

Imagine if you will, yourself at Source, standing at the center of the universe, looking down at the entire universe and deciding if you should incarnate on a far away, small and seemingly insignificant planet such as Earth. You have the power and ability to take yourself anywhere in the universe but from that expanded perspective, you choose Earth because it seems to be calling for assistance, desperately needing and longing for what you now have, what you now are: pure essence and absolute, unconditional love. You must certainly find a way to bring this pure essence with you to that human realm. Therefore, you must remain connected with this essence at all times in order to allow it to reach the Earth while you are incarnated. So one aspect of you leaves for Earth while the rest of your consciousness remains at Source. Convinced? But there is more.

Now that you have decided to jump into the earthly experience, bringing with you “what you have and what you are at Source” - let’s call it your “Divine Self” - you must now activate this connection, so to speak, to allow the flow between the two consciousnesses to occur. You normally come equipped with this activation remembrance when you incarnate but Earth turns out to be a strange place where anything can happen. So in case you don’t remember this precise activation, simply ask, as I did when I was five. And if you persist, the connection, communication and experience become so real, so alive, so easy and so fun and more importantly, so deliciously exquisite.

The next thing is to understand why you would do such a thing i.e. incarnate in a human body so far away from your original home. Other than the curiosity of what that may feel like, which is a legitimate reason, you are now collaborating with the universal consciousness at a whole new level. Transporting yourself from one place to another creates a merging of the two consciousnesses through what is called resonance. Resonance means that the two energies that are coming together converge organically and begin sharing properties. In other words, your Divine Self that is now implanting itself within Earth’s reality is organically sharing its properties with Earth’s properties. And since your Divine Self contains and is made of Source material, this also means that you are implanting Source material here on Earth - most likely without your conscious awareness. This also means you are adding to and expanding Earth’s consciousness by simply allowing your Divine Self to be present here - again, most likely without your conscious awareness. So now the “Descending Gods” to the Earth plane concept takes on a whole new meaning. Wouldn’t you be that Descending God since you hold the very fabric of Source and Creation within your being? The only difference between you at this hour and those we call “Descending Gods” or “Ascended Masters” and the like, is that these beings are aware of this process while you simply are not.

And now, your life's purpose also takes on a whole new meaning. Are you here to be the best human you can be through good deeds and moral endeavors or whatever this means to you, or are you carrying a precious consciousness that is here to expand the world through your simple awareness and focus? It is in fact both. But while we struggle to make sense of the obvious being-a-good-human, doing-the-right-thing sort of purpose, we totally ignore the latter more profound and real one: becoming who we are as Source energy in human form. And not only can we not ignore the true aspect of our being and the primary purpose of our incarnation, but our human purpose will remain short-lived and disconnected from its real source of creation. Here come the physical imbalances, the midlife crises and the like, which are simply unconscious calls to reconnect us with our true higher purpose and most authentic self. In other words, you must become who you are, prior to or while you accomplish the good humanly deeds on Earth.

So what are you waiting for? If a five year old can comprehend the importance of the connection to her own essence and how that essence is brought through the human body, you most certainly can. All it takes is your asking and your awareness. Even though you may feel you still have much work to do in the area of achieving universal consciousness and manifesting divinity in human form, you can begin with these few simple practical steps that will align you with your true higher purpose: 1. Create a new life agreement that spells out what you really want: become and express your Divine Self in human form 2. Do the meditation "Connecting to Source" (available on my website free of charge) every day and throughout the day as needed with the intent to activate your own Source / Divine Self and 3. Intend that your higher purpose would naturally unfold within your human awareness, align with your human purpose and guide you through your daily creation and expression.

Finally I will also say, if we are to create Heaven on Earth, then the starting point must certainly be Heaven, not Earth. But until then, my wish is that you may begin to experience tremendous gratitude, truthful acceptance and profound love towards the human aspect of your being, as it is precious to the universe and to Source. And as you embrace this new awareness, you will be consciously contributing to Earth and to humanity's expansion like the Descending God that you really are.

Caroline Cory is a visionary author, spiritual healer and teacher of consciousness studies. She is the founder of the OMnium Method of Quantum Healing and New Paradigm Education. For more information, please visit her website at www.OmniumUniverse.com. For comments on this article, please e-mail caroline@OmniumUniverse.com